Heady Vermont Announces Free Event Featuring Panel of Cannabis Experts

BURLINGTON, Vt. — Since launching last month, Heady Vermont has used its online platforms to bring greater depth and access to cannabis conversations in the Green Mountain State, engaging thousands of readers in Vermont and beyond.

In the next step of its mission to connect and engage, Heady Vermont is holding a free public event at the Skinny Pancake in Burlington on Tuesday, April 19 from 6 to 8 p.m. With four speakers that are experts in their fields, Heady Times: The Future of Vermont Cannabis is intended to further serve the greater public by providing political updates from Sen. David Zuckerman, hemp updates and possibilities from the Vermont Hemp Company, and lessons learned by established entrepreneurs from the Northeast Cannabis Coalition.

"There are thousands of Vermonters out there with great experience, energy, and ideas — in addition to the online platforms, this is an opportunity to gather them in person and learn from experts and network with each other," said Editor Eli Harrington.

"Only by meeting and learning from each other will we be able to cultivate the kind of expertise and networks that will truly make Vermont a center of cannabis excellence in the future."

There will be a Q&A opportunity for audience members after the speaker panel wraps up, followed by networking. Attendees will also have a chance to directly contact their legislators via our Statehouse Shout Out table. Heady Vermont volunteers will assist people in finding their elected representative, and hand deliver all messages to the Statehouse after the event.

Heady Times: The Future of Vermont Cannabis takes place at The Skinny Pancake on 60 Lake Street, Burlington VT 05401 from 6 to 8 p.m. More details about the event are available at HeadyVermont.com.
